French Miamian Carol Jazzar has produced well-thought exhibits inside her spacious, white, wooden shack-turned-art-space (right next to a beautiful tropical garden with a pool) at her own North Miami abode. During the past year, she has presented Tom Scicluna's Gazebo, Luis García Nerey's Babylon, Lilian Garcia-Roy's Cumulative Nature and, more recently, David Rohn's Marry Me Western Union performance series. She represents Guerra de la Paz, Lou Ann Colodny, Samantha Salzinger and Gizmo, among others. Jazzar's house-gallery matters because it's different, off the beaten path, and because Jazzar's persistent commitment to programming quality has earned her the respect of Miami's art community.
